

Optometry and Ophthalmic Resources

Books, e-books and multimedia materials

Use the Library Website Quick Search to find books, e-books and DVDs on your subject. The library website is accessed online at www.libweb.anglia.ac.uk Find specific books on your reading list using an author's name and significant words from the title. Find books on a topic by entering words that describe your subject (keywords).

The classification number shown in the 'Location' column on your results screen is the key to finding books on the shelves. Books are arranged on the shelves in numeric order using these numbers.

The main class number for Optometry and Ophthalmic Dispensing is 617.7. Books at this number are located on the second floor of the Library.

Electronic Books (e-books) can also be accessed via the library website. Follow the 'Click here for access link' you will be prompted to log in using your University Login username (e.g. ab1 or abc101) and password used to access other University online services (e.g. My.Anglia, e-mail, VLE, staff and student PCs, etc) to reach the full text of the book.

We also have an e-book collection of thirty one titles in Optometry. At the present time these books are only available via "Database Search" in the Digital Library - search for "Ovid" and then go via "OVID Databases and Journals" and select "Books at Ovid" You can browse a list of all 31 titles or perform a key word search across all titles.

Journal articles, research papers etc.

Journal articles are a good source of information and you will be encouraged to refer to them, either by looking at specific articles on your reading lists or by carrying out your own searches for articles on your assignment topic.

In Science, information about the latest research will generally appear in a journal long before it is published in book form.

You can find specific journal articles by searching 'Journal Finder' this will search for both Print and Online Journals.

Print journals are shelved alphabetically by title on the first floor of the Library.

The following is a selection of our journals for Optometry and Ophthalmic Dispensing.

Online Journals are accessible via the Library Website; you will have to log in to get access to them.

Using Quick Search will give you a high chance of finding some full text material on your chosen topic.

Use Advanced Search for more extensive and in-depth searching. You will need to log in (University Login username and password).

Choose Health from the drop down menu, then scroll down the list of sub categories and select Vision and Hearing, this will give you a range of databases relevant to your subject.

Advanced Search (SubjectSearch)

Advanced search allows you to fine tune your search and select your resource(s) individually.

HINTS: To search one or more databases together, check the boxes first to search a single database click its name. Results from combined searches are displayed separately (by database) on the next screen. N.B. not all results may have the full-text. To ensure getting more full-text results, use the regular journal articles search.

Referencing

You need to cite and reference other people's work correctly if you use it within your own work. Your department uses the Harvard System of Referencing. Further information and examples can be found in the Library's Guide to the Harvard System of Referencing at www.libweb.anglia.ac.uk/referencing/harvard.htm. It is important to keep good records of all the material that you read for your work so that you can reference other people's work correctly.

You can use an area called My Book-shelf and My Journal e-shelf within My Digital Library on the Library website to save your search results.

All references can be managed using a free bibliographic management tool –

RefWorks It can help you create reference lists in the Harvard style.
